FISHING IN GLOUCESTER

means of ropes attached to stakes, with pulleys at top and bottom. There are long net wings, projecting from the pounds, which entice the school of fish into a large opening in the net, and leading to a smaller one, which they enter, finding themselves in a sort of maze, from which few ever escape. When the pound is full, the fisherman enters into the large opening in a boat and by means of the ropes and pulley, gradually draws the net up until the fish are in a deep pocket. Then he dips out the shad and herring with a dip net, the sturgeon and bonito having first been harponed to prevent the net from being broken. The shad and herring are speedlly packed in ice for the New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and Richmond markets.

The fish season is a busy time in Gloucester. Numbers of telegrams are coming in and a larger steamer has been put on the line between Gloucester and Mathews wharves takes up the barrels of fish.

I have only mentioned a few of the fish which live in the bays and their estuaries. Time would fail to tell of all of them and the crustaceans, such as soft and hard crabs, clams, butterfish, the latter unknown, I believe, outside of Tidewater Virginia, and the syster. But the latter is a story which should be told all to itself. accompanying testimonials must admit that a remedy about which such words can be written—and they are honestly written—must be a marvelous remedy indeed. We have from time to time printed letters regarding Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, in which the writers said they had lived on crackers and milk for weeks until they took Syrup Pepsin and were cured of their indigestion. Syrup Pepsin cures indigestion and such troubles as constipation, biliousness, belching, gas on the stormach, heartburn, etc., because it is in every sense a scientific preparation. It is effective but yet mild, and it tastes pleasantly. It also contains tonic ingredients that strengthen the stomach and bowel muscles, so that in a short time they do their work again naturally. It is a laxative tonic of genuine merit, and yet perfectly harmless to an infant. Thousands of mothers buy it for their children. Perhaps it would be best for you to send for a free sample bottle first, and then, after you have used it and become convinced it is the remedy you have been looking for, buy it of your druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle. Thousands have begun the use of Syrup Pepsin by first beginning on a sample bottle, which was sent free. Dr. Caldwell does not feel that the Dr. Caldwell does not feel that the purchase of his remedy ends his obli-gation. He has specialized in stomach, lives and bowel diseases for over forty years, and will be pleased to give the reader any advice on the subject free of charge. All are welcome to write him. Whether for the medical advice or the free sample address him Dr. W. B. Caidwell, 541 Caidwell Building, Moutteelle, Ili. Monticello, Ill.

"I have traveled all over the country for my health, have tried changes of climate, different waters, different doctors, but never could get rid of my indigestion. Finally I couldn't eat the lightest food without it nearly killing me. One jucky day I saw a reference to Syrup Pepsin, and determined to try it. I had tried everything else, so why not this? I did, and the result is that I am a cured man to-day, able to do as big a day'e work as I ever did, and sound and well in every way. I believe Syrup Pepsin did it, and hence willingly recommend it."—William Lee, 228 18th Street, Cairo, Ill.

"Your free sample bottle of Syrup Pepsin was a great fortune to me. I got to the point where I could not trust myself to eat anything but milk toast, oatmasi and such things. Since I am taking Syrup Pepsin I can eat most anything with a relish, and do not experience any misery in my stomach as I did for two years past. I will always have it in the house hereafter, for it has done me more genuine good than all the other things combined I have taken in the past three years."—J. B. Bickel, S. 19th Street, Terre Haute, Ind.

"The sample bottle of Syrup Pepsin received. The result of the trial proved satisfactory, and am now using a large bottle purchazed from our druggist. I find it to be a good medicine for indigestion."—Mrs. J. S. Stanley, Seymour, Mo.

"I received your free sample of Syrup Pepsin, which I took according to directions, and can say it has done me more good than anything else. I have bought one bottle and used it."—I. W. Worthy, Forsythe, Ga.
